

The harm that BPL will do to the amateur radio and other services currently operating in the allocated space will be unmeasurable. A natural source of trained and skilled operators who can and do provide invaluable service during time of emergencies, disasters and even war, will be destroyed. The evidence provided by the technical filers should be strongly considered along with the history of Japan and European countries where BPL is in place. Please do not do this. The financial gain (or ruin) of would-be service providers should not be allowed to outway all the benefits that amateur radio provides, now and in the future.

The current state of internet access is overbuilt now, witness the financial plight of cable and telephone providers. There is not a clear and overwhelming demand for yet more access.

Please look for alternatives for BPL where it will not cause harm.
